The President's Thoughts

Integrity is defined as "an adherence to a code of values of honesty, moral uprightness, soundness and completeness".

Events that have occurred over the past several years in the corporate world have shown that there is a need for a renewed commitment to all of the values that are part of integrity.

There are, I believe, two different but equal aspects of integrity - the "legal" aspect whereby a person or company is guided by the requirements of law, and the "moral" aspect whereby a person or company is guided by the heart, always wanting to do the right thing.

Development of integrity depends solely upon the moral fabric of the individual involved. One must have a high personal standard of ethical behavior and live according to that standard, day to day.

Leaders must have a high level of integrity. They must uphold high standards of quality and ethics every day, without exception. Integrity is demonstrated in the way a leader deals with staff members, customers, colleagues and others.

Recently I was asked if I have sleepless nights. I responded that I sleep peacefully and queried why the person posed this question. The person asked how I can sleep peacefully with far-flung construction projects ranging from the West Coast of Australia to the East Coast of America. My response was that I have peaceful nights because Milne employees value integrity.

The Mission Statement of the Milne Company includes a sentence that best describes how Milne employees think about integrity: "Milne values integrity; our practices are honest, our conduct legal and ethical."

We at Milne are blessed with employees who value integrity and live it day to day. There is no reason to have sleepless nights.

I thank all Milne Employees for their commitment to integrity.

United Way / Share Life

Via the Milne Company's ongoing program of matching all employee contributions to United Way and Share Life, nearly $30,000 was donated to charities in the communities where we worked during 2005. For employees who give the "Suggested Gift" amount, based on their earnings, the Company also matches up to $300 of contributions to any other tax-exempt charities of the employee's choice.

Retirement Plan

All US employees are eligible to participate in the Northwest Associated General Contractors Chapters 401(k) Profit Sharing Plan after meeting the eligibility requirements. This continues the Company's commitment to assisting employees with retirement savings that has been a Milne policy since 1966.
